

The junction point indicated with a ▲ is an important navigational landmark. This site is physically marked with multiple fanned-out flags.

This junction is approached at the end of the original ICESat Traverse route.

After arrival at that junction, the route turns in nearly the opposite direction, to continue clockwise around the extension route.

Upon returning to the junction after the extension route, vehicles proceed straight through the junction to return to station.

Return to station
6.7 km

ICESat-2 Extension Navigation

Navigation between ICESat Traverse and ICESat-2 Extension

